Leading remote surveillance provider, Vision Intelligence, opens purpose-built monitoring centre

Vision intelligence recently opened its ASIAL-accredited, state-of-the-art Command monitoring centre at its Seven Hills (NSW) head office to support their growing surveillance and data solution service offerings across various sectors throughout Australia and New Zealand.

The opening of the Vision Intelligence Command centre is another milestone achievement for the ATF-owned technology business.

Providing security monitoring and bespoke data reporting service solutions compliments the Australian-owned, designed, and manufactured product range known for exceptional quality and functionality.

Vision Intelligence provides thousands of customers in construction, mining and local government with portable, solar-powered camera solutions.

Robin Mysell, Group CEO said “Investing in this world-class facility is an important step to keep up with the strong growing demand and application of our products and service solutions. Our team has developed unique edge technology supporting our proprietary systems to further enhance the quality and user experience helping our valued customers manage their assets. It’s a great start to the year for Vision Intelligence.”
