

Certis New Head Office

Certis is a unique blend of people, cultures and expertise, with combined local and global experience going back almost 100 years, and we are proud to reflect our history in our modern approach.

Certis has grown from a security guard and escort unit to become a leading integrated security services provider for businesses around the globe. In 2016, Certis acquired the Australian heritage company BRI Security, followed by SNP Security in 2018. Operating since 1923, SNP displayed unparalleled security expertise across aviation, transport, logistics, critical infrastructure and commercial precincts. Many of the partnerships established are still successful today.

Certis' acquisition of SNP and BRI was the next evolution in this Australian success story, adding essential knowledge of local customs and successful partnerships to the Certis brand.

Certis is now renowned as a trusted integrated security services provider for businesses around the globe. The 2021 appointment of Kang Song Lim, a 30 year veteran of the technology sector, to the post of Chief Executive for Certis Security Australia signalled a tech pivot for the local market, and Certis Technology was launched.

At Certis Security Australia, we believe that technology and traditional operations must work together so that all security systems support each other to deliver the best outcomes, including reducing customer costs and creating a seamless transition between programs. Certis required a new home for the operation and service delivery to customers, and in 2022 we invested in a new Head Office in Sydney's Macquarie Park. We're ready to welcome our customers to our collaborative workspace, state-of-the-art National Operations Centre and Executive Briefing Centre.
